Pershing Co. ?

Item 17

LOCATION

Antelope Mining District, Pershing ~~Lander~~ County, Nevada, about 25 miles west of Battle Mountain.

GEOLOGY

A small stibnite-bearing quartz fissure cutting quartz diorite. The fissure is persistent and can be traced on the surface for nearly the entire length of the mining claim.

DEVELOPMENT

225 linear feet of development has disclosed a 24-foot oreshoot, sampling of which showed 10.6% antimony across an average width of 22 inches. A winze and a 30-foot sublevel 17 feet below further develop this oreshoot. A small stope also connects the sublevel with the tunnel level above. It is reported that two cars of sorted antimonial ore averaging 42 to 57% antimony were shipped from the workings during World War I.

Negligible ore reserves.
