DEVELOPMENT: Several open cuts & one large drift.ACTIVITY AT TIME OF EXAMINATION: None, although claims are probably still current.

GEOLOGY: The main working on the Great White Hope claims is a north-trending open cut & drift. The cut is about 150' in length & the drift is about 200' long X 20' high X 20' wide. The workings adjoin each other & explore the same bedded diatomite horizon developed at the Try Light claims. The diatomite horizon consists of several 1-3' wide beds overlain & underlain by massive beds of grey, silty mudstone. The beds strike N-NW & dip 30° NE. Exposed in the face of the open cut there are several high-angle faults which displace the diatomite beds.

The diatomite is pure white, has a platy cleavage habit along bedding & is easily crushed by hand.
