Examined Sept. 1942.

History and production

Reported production of about 10,000 tons of manganese ore in World War I.

Type Deposit (Geology) A vein striking about N. 10° W. and dipping 30° to 50° to the west contained lenses of manganese oxide ore; practically all of which appeared to have been mined out.

Mine Workings Several stoped portions of the vein show that considerable mining had been done in the past.
