Sand Springs

Leaving Reno on May 23, 1932, by automobile, the first stop was made at Sand Springs. In the hills southeast of Sand Springs Station is located the Dan Tucker Mine, a silver-gold property owned by L. S. Leonard, of Reno, Nevada. For several years it has been leased by Reesbeck, who made a small production. The ore was trucked down the hills to a small Ellis mill erected on the edge of the salt marsh near Sand Springs Station. The property is now idle.

Gold Park

(233)

The gold property at Gold Park is owned by A. L. Nelson and John Bowler, of Reese River Valley, Austin or Ione P. O. Nelson is working at the mine. Recent negotiations for the sale of this mine have fallen down. It is said that Nelson now demands $25,000 cash payment, an excessive sum for the showing and conditions. The Gold Park Mine was for sale for $50,000 in 1930. John Haley of Reno is said to have made an examination recently.

Rawhide

A number of prospectors are working in Rawhide and vicinity.
